The Glenmede Quantitative U.S. Large Cap Faith-Based Equity Composite had a total return for Second Quarter 2022 of -15.8% (-16.0% net of fees). On a relative basis, the Quantitative U.S. Large Cap Faith-Based Equity Composite outperformed the Russell 1000 Index by +0.9% (+0.7% net).

For the Second Quarter 2022, the S&P 500 and Russell 1000 Indexes had total returns of -16.1% and -16.7%, respectively. The year-to-date total return of -20.0% for the S&P 500 was the worst in the first half of a calendar year since 1962. Investors were jolted by surging inflation, Russia's war with Ukraine, and China's lockdowns for COVID. To combat inflation, the Fed aggressively started raising short-term interest rates, including a 75 basis point increase in June (largest since 1994). The 10-year Treasury yield finished the quarter at about 3.0% versus 2.3% at the end of prior quarter. First quarter 2022 earnings reports were better than expected with 77% and 73% of companies in the S&P 500 reporting positive earnings and revenue surprises, respectively. The Russell 1000 Value Index (-12.2%) outperformed the Russell 1000 Growth Index (-20.9%) by about +8.7%. The best performing sectors in the Russell 1000 Index were Consumer Staples (-5.1%) and Energy (-5.2%). The worst performing sectors were Consumer Discretionary (-26.0%) and Information Technology (-21.3%).

For the quarter, the strategy had net positive contributions from multi-factor stock selection models, including biases towards stocks with lower valuations and stronger fundamentals. The strategy was positively impacted from underexposures to four of the five largest growth companies in the Russell 1000 Index. The strategy benefitted from underweightings to companies with negative earnings. The strategy had stock selection outperformance in six of eleven sectors. The most positive relative contributions were in the Information Technology and Consumer Discretionary sectors. The most negative relative contributions were in the Energy and Industrials sectors. Industry group biases had minor impact on performance.

The latest U.S. real GDP estimate for First Quarter was -1.6% versus +6.9% for Fourth Quarter. GDP reflected gains in personal consumption expenditures (+1.8%) and fixed investment (+7.4%). Detractors included imports (+18.9%), exports (-4.8%) and federal spending (-6.8%). Many economists project real GDP growth of 1% to 3% for 2022. We continue to expect favorable corporate earnings growth for the Second Half 2022 supported by high employment and prudent Fed monetary policy. However, high inflation, Russia's invasion of Ukraine and China lockdowns are having significant global economic and financial impacts. Currently, our leading industry group indicators target overweightings in Consumer Discretionary, Communication Services, Materials, Health Care and Energy, and underweightings in Industrials, Information Technology, Consumer Staples and Utilities. We believe this strategy is well positioned with its multifactor approach favoring stocks with cheaper valuations, stronger fundamentals, positive earnings/revenue estimate trends and attractive technicals.
